Who am I?

I guess you could say I'm an explorer, I love to discover things, and during my life I have done my fair share of exploring.

Quick facts about me, I used to be a graffiti artist, semi-pro snowboarder, tattoo apprentice, avid pinball player and metal head (I still am).

Passionate about learning new things, and share my knowledge with others. Always open to new ideas and concepts that challenge my own.
I'm also according to others (obsessively) detail minded.

I'm a sucker for books, real books not e-books although e-books have many benefits they lack the tangible experience of paper.

I make humans fall in love with ordinary items.

That statement somewhat sums up what I do for a living. My goal is to create things people will love, and this love starts the moment a person sees and interacts with an object.

Do you remember the excitement when opening a Christmas present as a kid? That's the feeling I try to give people when they experience my creations.

And over the years I'd like to think I have gotten pretty good at it.
